Law Day 2025 brings surprise resignation from Judge Baillargeon

By Gari Voss

Allegan County's celebration of Law Day 2025 on May 1st promoted the theme of "The Constitution's Promise: Out of Many, One". During the celebration, the 2025 Liberty Bell Award was given, and the Honorable William Baillargeon announced the recipient of the Excellence in the Law Scholarship in honor of the Honorable George R. Corsiglia. But the most memorable moment was Judge Baillargeon's announcement that he had informed Governor Gretchen Whitmer of his intended resignation as of August 1, 2025.

Law Day & the Constitution
The Honorable Emily Jipp of the 48th Circuit Court began the proceedings with references to May 1st being Law Day, and this year's theme is "The Constitution's Promise: Out of Many, One". "The Constitution reflects the ideals that shape our profession and democracy. Law is more than statutes and precedent," explained Judge Jipp. "It's the unifying force forged in diversity and grounded in the enduring promise of constitutional democracy. Our constitution was a radical and pragmatic experiment born out of compromise, ambition and vision that united 13 colonies under law. The original constitution left out some important pieces which is why we have added, challenged, interpreted and fought for the equality ever since." The Judge continued, "The Bill of Rights was the first collective statement that liberty requires limits on government power. That piece stated that religion, due process and trial by jury are not privileges but rights. Later the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments of the constitution sought to fulfill the Constitution's promise for all by abolishing slavery, defining citizenship, guaranteeing equal protection, and protecting the right to vote. The amendments reshaped our legal landscape, and yet, the promise they held has often demanded continual enforcement and reaffirmation in the courts and in our society." Judge Jipp's explanation did not stop there, "The 19th Amendment secured women's right to vote. The 24th eliminated poll taxes, and the 26th expanded suffrage to 18 year olds. Each amendment was a marker of progress and demanded more of the constitution and has asked more of us." Laurie Tange, the court administrator, presented the Liberty Bell Award to Carol Carr. "The award is given to a person who has made outstanding contributions to the cause of justice and the functioning of the legal system. Somebody who embodies the spirit of civic responsibility, dedication, and service." Ms. Tange shared that Ms. Carr began working

During the Law Day 2025 celebrations and presentations in the Allegan County 57th District Court, and after Judge Emily Jipp explained the importance of the U.S. Constitution, the Honorable William Baillargeon reiterated the unique nature of the Constitution of the United States and the responsibilities of all judges to fulfill the laws of the Constitution in a non-partisan, professional manner. Then he announced that he had given his letter of resignation to Governor Whitmer as of August 1, 2025.

in the legal community at Sheridan and Sheridan 34 years ago. When Steven Sheridan became a judge, Carr followed him as his judicial assistant. "During the last 34 years, Carr has been committed to ensure that justice is impactful. She has spent countless hours assisting members of the public in navigating the often complex and overwhelming court system. Whether someone was facing a housing issue, family matter, criminal case, or civil concern, Carr has always been a calm, knowledgeable and compassionate presence, helping people understand the situation and finding their way through the legal process with dignity. Since the inception of the problem solving courts, she has been there, not just as a supporter, but helping shape the courts into the innovative, humane, and effective institutions that they are today," explained Tange. "But Carol's service doesn't stop there. She has been a guide for new attorneys [and judges], generously sharing her wisdom, her time, and unwavering sense of professionalism. She has helped shape the next generation of legal minds, instilling in them the same commitment to justice and public service that she herself embodies." After Carr graciously accepted the Liberty Bell Award, it was the Honorable William Baillargeon, justice of the 57th District Court, turn to present the Excellence in the Law Scholarship in honor of the Honorable George R. Corsiglia from the William and Agnes Baillargeon Memorial Fund. This recipient is Taylor Klimp, who is graduating from Otsego High School and has plans to pursue a career in family law. Judge Baillargeon stated that this scholarship can be given to a high school graduate who plans on pursuing a degree in law, an individual who would like to attend a law enforcement academy, or college students who are already involved in law studies. The Excellence in the Law Scholarship is in honor of the Honorable George R. Corsiglia, who Baillargeon described as a tough but fair judge who would do what he could to enforce the law. "We must continue to fight and to uphold and work to make sure that the Constitution isn't just simply words written on a page. That is why my husband Brent Leonard and I established the William and Agnes Baillargeon Foundation to present scholarships to individuals for the excellence in the practice or pursuit of law," explained the Judge. "We give them generally to high school students, but they are available to college students as well as individuals applying to the various academies for law enforcement." Judge Baillargeon then began what he described as an extremely difficult piece of information. "Our constitution is under attack and our civil rights laws are being used to dismantle civil liberties. Some seek to intimidate and coerce the judiciary in hopes of bending decisions and opinions to their will. The rule of law is cited to justify ignoring due process protections. The late Justice Antonin Scalia said that every tinpot dictator has a bill of rights. What separates us [the United States] is due process. "Who is impacted by this violation of due process that we are seeing? Of course, it's the unseen. It's the poor. It's the marginalized. It's the vulnerable. But as ignoring due process becomes normalized, who then will be next? Perhaps attorneys,

Christian song ban from Talent Show rescinded by superintendent

By Gari Voss

News published on May 1, 2025, by several news outlets stated that the Allegan Public Schools would not permit students to sing songs from Christian artists Colton Dixon and Brandon Lake at the audition for their school talent show because of the religious content. The First Liberty Institute, a liberty law firm, received the information and jumped on the claim which was referred to as "inexcusable discrimination" in a statement that came to the attention of the press.

Superintendent Antoine explained that neither the staff nor parents at West Ward Elementary had consulted his office for clarification regarding the district's position on the singing of religious themed music. Thus began the misunderstanding and the sharp response from Kayla Toney, the counsel for the First Liberty Institute, who had not called Mr. Antoine to qualify the situation before sending out press releases. Those who have had students in the Allegan schools over the years know that often there is religious themed music performed during concerts and talent shows, in music classes, and in competitions. The wonderful melodies and harmonies assist in building young voices and expanding the students' repertoire of music. When Supt. Antoine learned of the misstep by the West Ward staff, he immediately responded to the school staff and the media. "This morning, it was brought to the attention of Allegan Public Schools that concerns had been raised about the handling of student auditions for the upcoming talent show at West Ward Elementary. Specifically, the concern involved whether students were being prohibited from performing a song that contains religious lyrics, and that the family was asked to consider choosing an alternate song. "Upon review, it was determined that school staff were unfamiliar with the legal guidelines concerning religious expression in a public school setting. "To clarify: students are permitted to perform songs of their choice, including those with religious content, provided the material complies with the student code of conduct - particularly regarding language and theme. "Religious songs have been, and will continue to be, allowed at school events like talent shows. We are pleased to report that this matter was resolved quickly. The student was given the opportunity to audition and will be performing in the upcoming talent show. "We are also reviewing our internal communication processes to ensure that similar matters are appropriately reviewed before decisions are communicated to students or families. We regret any confusion or frustration this situation may have caused and remain committed to supporting our students' diverse talents." It is not known if school staff will review the Respect Project training program, www.respectproject.net, as requested by First Liberty to ensure that students of all faiths are free to express their beliefs in accordance with the protections of the First Amendment, but staff members across the district now know the importance of asking more questions before making statements about protocol and school policy to students, parents and/or the public.

A daughter recalls Michigan's most tragic airliner crash

By Jeff Brasie

On Sunday, Aug. 16, 1987, earlier in the day, Northwest Flight 750 completed a flight from Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport, with a stopover at Saginaw's MBS Airport. The aircraft then continued on to Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport (DTW).

That evening, the aircraft, now known as Flight 255, would continue on to Phoenix's Sky Harbor International airport, with a final leg to John Wayne Airport in California's Orange County.

The twin-engine McDonnell Douglas MD-80 aircraft was introduced to the aviation industry in October 1979. The MD-80 was a reconfiguration of the DC-9. The aircraft was designed for a short haul and could accommodate 130 to 172 passengers. This aircraft, Flight 255, entered Northwest's use in 1981.

On board Flight 255 were a crew of six and 149 passengers. Two of those passengers, Doug and Nel Thompson, were originally from northeastern Michigan. He was 63 and she was 57. Together, they had eight children.

He was employed by General Telephone and Electronics. His career spanned first as a northeastern Michigan and Upper Peninsula lineman and, later, into Alpena-based GTE regional management.

The Thompsons were enroute to Phoenix, where he owned Western Wiring, a utility installation and support company.

The Lift-off

The doors were secured and a pushback tug backed Flight 255 from the jetway at 8:34 p.m. The aircraft's manifest total weight was 144,046 pounds. The maximum allowed for lift-off was 146,058 pounds.

The ground control tower directed the 57-year-old captain, John Maus, and first officer, 35-year-old David Dodds, to taxi to runway 3C. Other runways were being assigned for departing flights.

Runway 3C was, at that time, DTW's shortest runway.

The captain and first officer proceeded to the runway and missed an entry turn. The flight deck again contacted the control tower for runway 3C directions, which were given. The captain and first officer were assigned a new control tower radio frequency and flight controller. A slight rain drizzle was beginning.

At 8:44 p.m., Flight 255 began its roll to lift-off runway 3C. Its speed was projected to be 200 mph.

Susie Thompson

Slightly after 8:45 p.m., the tower picked up distraught cockpit voices, alarms, and subsequent multiple aircraft impact sounds.

Immediately, control tower records show, an announcement was given to all outbound and inbound flights: "Close the airport down. There has been a crash."

A Daughter Learns of 255's Crash

That evening, daughter Susie Thompson was working at the Allegan County Sheriff's Office as a dispatcher.

Her coworkers, a sheriff lieutenant and a sergeant, were listening to an aircraft crash breaking news account in a nearby room. The news was preliminary and fragmented. They informed Thompson of what they heard.

The officers reached out to their Wayne County police counterparts and were able to learn the flight number and its destination. They shared that information with Thompson.

She burst out, "My God, this is my parent's flight."

The Daughter and Her Sister Arrive at Metro Airport

With the assistance of coworkers, Thompson and her sister were quickly driven to DTW, where, for the better part of 10 days, they stayed at a nearby hotel. Daily, they received updates and attended news conferences. During the passenger and crew identification process, they were tasked to locate medical and attendant, "You really don't NW 255 memorial at METRO dental records. At that time, DNA identification was not fully sophisticated.

Thompson shared that a challenging moment was when she, her sister, and other passenger family members were escorted to a large Northwest flight hanger. Once there, they wandered through a maze of tables laden with personal effects.

They were able to identify her father's wedding ring and stepmother's luggage.

Thompson saw at the end of the hanger a large opening separated by hanging plastic strips. She could see body bags were being brought into that area. She asked for the opportunity to identify her father's remains. She was advised by an want to do this."

She heeded the advice.

A Glimmer of Hope Occurred

When public safety and rescue personnel arrived at the Flight 255 crash site, a news account said, Andy Graves of the Huron Valley rescue lives. He later stated, "There was nobody to save."

Romulus firefighter John Thiede arrived in his fire engine with his partner. They began to hose down the burning debris. Suddenly, they heard a faint voice. Rushing with a bright flashlight to the sound, they pushed aside mounds of wreckage and found 4-year-old Cecelia Cichan strapped upside down in her car seat attached to an airliner seat. Her parents and older brother perished.

Cichan was rushed to Ann Arbor's C.S. Mott Children's Hospital, where she received months of care for her burns and fractures.

She never spoke publicly about this crash until she appeared on the television production of "Sole Survivor" nearly 25 years later.

The Tributes

Thompson and her family have attended Northwest Flight 255 memorial anniversaries.

There are three memorials across the country reflecting this tragic crash.

A granite memorial listing the event and all the names is on a knoll surrounded by evergreens near the Middlebelt Road and I-94 interchange.

A second monument is located in Phoenix, Arizona, adjacent to the city hall. Finally, a marker is placed at General Motors Milford Proving Ground in memory of the 14 GM employees who perished.

Lawsuits followed and were settled primarily against Northwest Airlines and McDonnell Douglas corporation.

Northwest Airlines and its new owner, Delta Airlines, no longer utilize a Flight 255 identification.

Decades later, ambulance driver Graves, along with Mindi Odom, wrote a tribute to flight 255 entitled, "August Rain." The song can be found on YouTube.

In addition, Hank Winchester, of Detroit's WDIV-TV-4, offers a 12-minute news segment on Flight 255. This documentary can also be found on YouTube.

Jeffrey D. Brasie is a retired health care CEO. He frequently writes historic feature stories and op-eds for various Michigan newspapers and magazines. As a Vietnam-era veteran, he served in the U.S. Navy and U.S. Naval Reserve. He served on the public affairs staff of the Secretary of the Navy. He grew near the tip of the mitt and resides in suburban Detroit.

Civil War veterans honored at cemetery

By Gari Voss

The northeast corner of the Oakwood Cemetery in Allegan, MI held a celebration on Saturday, May 3, 2025, at 11am for six Civil War veterans. Like so many Civil War soldiers, the soldiers returned from the war and began to meld back into their communities. If a soldier died destitute or at a county poor farm, the body was often taken to a local cemetery and placed in a potter’s field.

The Friends of Allegan’s Oakwood Cemetery and the General Benjamin Pritchard Camp 20 Sons of Union Veterans had identified 302 graves of Civil War veterans. Through their efforts over the last five years, that number has increased to 318.

“The goal of the Friends of Allegan Oakwood Cemetery and the Sons of Union Veterans is to identify these soldiers, honor them, and mark their graves with a headstone,” said Len Sheaffer, a trustee of Friends of Allegan’s Oakwood Cemetery and Commander of Camp 20. “It is really important to me as a member of the Friends, and as Commander of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. We are indebted to remember these folks and let people know what they did for this country.”

“These people need to be remembered,” said Amanda Strickfaden, a trustee of Friends of Allegan’s Oakwood Cemetery and the driving force in the restoration of grave markers around the cemetery. “They came before us, started the towns, started the state. So, they have a lot of stories that are important.”

Those stories are diverse. These six soldiers fought valiantly in the Civil War and are finally receiving recognition and new grave markers. They hailed from different states and served in different companies. But Six bright new headstones were installed in the northeast corner of Oakwood Cemetery in Allegan, MI on Sat., May 3, 2025. Each stone marks the grave of a Civil War soldier who previously had no marker. over time, they ended up in the northeast corner Oakwood Cemetery which holds other graves of unknown, unclaimed or indigent people.

The research conducted on these individuals required patience, and some of the stories are more complete than others. Their stories may never be fully known, but the dedicated researchers have been able to give some basic information on each.

Private Edward Boren was in Company D of the 74th Indiana Infantry. It is known that he was born in 1826 in Pennsylvania. Boren was drafted in Auburn, IN on September 20, 1864, and mustered out June 9, 1865. His occupation was listed as “farmer” in DeKalb, Illinois, but he ended up in the Kalamazoo Asylum in Kalamazoo, Michigan where he died on March 7, 1904.

Private Sanford Drown, Company G of the 146th New York Infantry, was born in Huron, New York in 1830. He enlisted at Auburn and began a 3-year term as a private on July 28, 1863. He mustered out on July 16, 1865, near Washington, DC. His occupation was described as farmer in both New York and Michigan where he died January 9, 1888, in Pine Plains (Valley Township).

Private William Kelley, Company D, 12th Indiana Cavalry, was born in Groveland, Livingston County, New York in 1820. While living in Elkhart, Indiana, he enlisted on December 16, 1863, and mustered in as a private that same day. In August 1865, Kelley mustered out and made a living as a gardener or farmer in Michigan where he died on December 20, 1903, in Allegan, Michigan.

Private Joseph Shaw, Co E of the 100th Indiana Infantry, was born in Pennsylvania in 1829. By August 12, 1862, he was in Indiana where he enlisted in Kendallville and mustered in as a Wagoner. After mustering out June 8, 1865, in Washington, DC. Shaw worked on farms as a day laborer, and ended up in Allegan, Michigan where he died November 14, 1903.

John A. Straub, Co A, 16th Regiment of the Michigan Infantry, seemed to be an adventurer. He was born in 1842 in Wisconsin to parents who had been born in France. He enlisted September 5, 1861, and mustered in the same date. Straub was found mustering out at Rappahannock Station, Virginia on December 21, 1863, where he re-enlisting the same day. July 8, 1865, Straub mustered out at Jeffersonville, Indiana. He spent a portion of his life in Chicago as a newspaper printer and circulator before becoming a farmer in Allegan where he died February 10, 1916.

Private Lewis L. Tracy, Co K of the 109th New York Infantry, was born in New York in 1819. He enlisted at Wirt for a three year stint and was mustered in on July 11, 1863. On November 19, 1864, Tracy had a disability discharge. He worked as a farm laborer in New York and later as a servant in Martin, Michigan. He died on March 9, 1904, at the Allegan County Infirmary.

This Gravestone Dedication was under the auspice of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War and sponsored by the Friends of Allegan’s Oakwood Cemetery and the General

Benjamin Pritchard Camp 20 Department of Michigan Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Commander Len Sheaffer of the General Benjamin Pritchard Camp 20 welcomed the crowd while the Hopkins FFA Honor Guard, under the guidance of Harry Kiraly, led the pledge. Amanda Strickfaden offered the Memoriam before the unveiling of the headstones. After recognition of guests and the poem “When the Boys in Blue are Gone”, Floral Tributes were made and the grave side dedication ceremony was held that was accented by the tolling of the bell, a gun salute, and taps by David Wolfe. After a presentation was made by descendants of those who had passed, a dismissal was given, and those gathered wandered slowly away.

The organizations ask that all who enjoy freedom thank a veteran or a member of the United States military who has ensured our freedoms.

Poll: residents support new parks millage

By John Raffel
Correspondent

ALLEGAN — Allegan County residents would support a new parks millage of a quarter mill according to the results of a poll conducted for the county by Polco,” ex-commissioner James Storey said. “In the county’s third installment of the poll, 3,000 randomly selected residents, weighted to reflect regional, cultural, and economic factors, 280 responders weighed in the county’s economic, health, and social climate situation.

“The National Community Survey posed the same questions in several areas among hundreds of local governmental units and uses the results to benchmark results. Community livability quality questions, saw residents rated safety, natural resources, and quality of parks as exceeding other communities surveyed.”

Storey added: “The survey sought to balance quality findings with the importance respondents placed in 10 distinct areas. For example, while the county’s economic situation rated a 44% confidence level, the importance was rated a 82%. Only 37% of the county’s respondents rated the county’s job opportunities as good or excellent.

“In the area of safety, upwards of 80 percent rated their neighborhood community as safe; similar high scores were recorded for public safety services.”

Hopkins Tech Vikes shine at World Championship

By Gari Voss

After performing well at the Michigan FIRST Robotics Championships, the Hopkins Tech Vikes headed to Houston, Texas for the World Championships, April 16-19, 2025. This is a culminating, international event for youth, and brings to a close the 2025 robotics competition season. It is the epitome of melding science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM), and truly prepares youth for the future.

When Tech Vikes (FRC 2054) began the competition, it was their robot against the clock. By the end of the qualification round, they stood 50th out of 75 teams from across the United States and beyond. What makes these competitions special is that the qualifying round is only the beginning. Alliances are then formed – teams from different states / countries form an alliance and complete against other alliances.

The Tech Vikes were selected by Alliance 3 and went on to the playoffs. “After a hard fought battle, our team with their alliance fell to the winners of our field,” shared Angie Flickinger, the Tech Vikes Mentor and school Paraprofessional. “We left the World Championship with the 2nd place silver medal and title of Johnson Field Division Finalist.”

As one family member exclaimed, “This was little Hopkins going up against teams from larger schools that are supported by huge companies! It’s like David against Goliath. These young people are phenomenal!”

Calling all thespians for Theater in the Park auditions

By Gari Voss

Mahan Park will have a facelift and a new gazebo when the Allegan Community Players present their 2nd Annual Theater in the Park in June. ACP will hold auditions for the two plays on Monday, May 12 and Tuesday, May 13, 2025, from 6:30 – 9pm at the Griswold Auditorium, 401 Hubbard St., Allegan.

“This is a fantastic opportunity to perform in a beautiful, outdoor setting and be part of a new, local tradition,” stated ACP President Don Grant. “The show dates will be Saturday, June 21 and Sunday, June 22, 2025, at 7pm.”

This summer, the Players will be performing two comedies written by Spike Kunetz, Soccer Mom Mom, and

They Came for Human Beans. The characters involved in the two plays include: a middle age, ambitious and scheming female; a smooth talking, jaded, middle age male morning DJ; a demanding but conservative, middle age businessman; a sensitive but excitable twenty-something male or female; a middle age, in charge male or female military commander; a sweet 60-70 grandmother who is not to be messed with; a 60-70 grandfather who is romantic and nerdy; a 60-70 grandfather who is loud mouthed and bullyish; and a 20-40ish female referee who is in charge and bossy.

Wayland's Theater ready to open Rock of Ages: Teen Edition

Get your tickets or just show up at the door of the Wayland Union Fine Arts Center on Friday, May 9 at 7pm, or Saturday, May 10, 2025, at 3pm or 7pm, and take a step back to the 1980s with the Wayland Union High School theater group.

The musical Rock of Ages: Teen Edition, by Chris D’Arienzo with arrangements and orchestrations by Ethan Popp, takes place in Hollywood towards the end of the 1980s at one of the Sunset Strip’s last legendary venues. An aspiring rock star longs to take the stage, but his dreams are about to be crushed when German developers sweep into town with plans to turn the beloved venue into another capitalist strip mall.

Rock of Ages: Teen Edition follows a group of friends trying to save the strip before it’s too late. Featuring music from hit bands such as Styx, Journey, Bon Jovi, and Whitesnake, the audience is guaranteed to enjoy a rockin’ good time.

Tickets are $12 for general admission and can be purchased at the door or online for reserved seating at wufactickets.ludus.com. The musical is a collaborative effort led by the entire high school Fine Arts Department.

Absent-minded journalist strikes again

Some people call me absent-minded, others call me addle-headed. Me, I just blame it on being left-handed.

Last week, I left my briefcase in a rental car. Its contents were my valuable laptop, scads of paperwork and files and some cash.

Let me explain. I didn't like the first rental car I picked out- too many miles. But in the process of checking out the car, I threw my briefcase in the backseat. When I went to a second car, which I did like, I forgot my briefcase, that is until I was about 25 miles away from the rental car place. When I realized it wasn't with me, I did a u-turn praying that no one had rented the car I first looked at.

As luck would have it my briefcase was right where I had left it. Whew, I had dodged a catastrophe.

Like father like son so the saying goes, when we returned the rental car a week later, I received a call as I was boarding my plane. Umm, sir we have a wallet that belongs to a Jordan Wilcox, that was left in your rental car. You can't be serious I thought, but they were, and my son had to high-tail it back to the rental agency and retrieve his wallet, complete with all credit cards and cash. Again, how lucky can we be?

My forgetfulness is not a recent phenomenon. A few years back I lost my credit card in the parking lot of the same rental agency. A few years before that I left my credit card on a plane while traveling to Florida. The wonderful flight attendants at the airline were kind enough to mail it to me.

A few years before that, I somehow managed to drop a set of keys, including my car keys down a manhole in downtown Hamtramck. At the time I owned the newspaper in that town and hurriedly left my office to reach my car which was parked in a lot across the street.

MIKE'S MUSINGS

Unfortunately, my keys fell out of my jacket pocket as I crossed a manhole cover. Down they went. I pulled off the heavy cover and peered down the hole. I couldn't see much of anything, but I feared there was probably a few inches of settled water and maybe a rat or two.

I retrieved a flashlight from the office and peered again. No live animals but there was an inch or two of water. Now the question became, how do I retrieve the keys?

My son came up with a novel idea. Why not use a magnet? It sounded like it might work, so we went to the hardware store and bought the biggest magnet we could find. It was almost 4 inches in diameter. We hooked it to a piece of string and lowered it into the manhole. And by golly after a few attempts we had the keys.

Apparently I didn't learn my lesson, because I continue to leave important items behind. Maybe I have too many things on my mind, or I'm too in a hurry to get where I need to be, or I'm just addle-headed.

Life as Performance Art

Growing up, each year our family went to the "Great Minnesota Get Together," better known as the State Fair. We toured the buildings, looked at the agriculture displays and livestock, and usually ate lunch at the Hamline United Methodist Church food booth. The Olds picked that place because we were Methodists and they felt obligated to be supportive. Besides, as Father would whisper, "They do a good job washing their hands." That was his way of saying there was a reasonable and holy hope we would not die of "toenail," (ptomaine) poisoning, or get sick from eating a "sam and ella" bowl of tuna hot dish. Only after we had eaten would we make our annual route march through the Midway on our way back to the parking lot. We never did any of the rides except for the "Old Mill" which was decidedly lame.

Besides, the real amusement at the fair were the politicians. They all attended and spoke in eloquent terms about how wonderful the fair was, how friendly everyone seemed to be, and so on. Superlatives only, please! The Republicans had one day; the Democrats another, but their shtick was always the same. They would wander around in front of their booth, mixing with the crowd, and doing a lot of "glad handing" to encourage people to vote for them. They always seemed to have a smile plastered on to their feet. Once they had a crowd gathered, they would stand up on the stage to give a short speech.

The whole idea was to say, "I'm just a regular guy, just like you. You drive a Chevy? Yeah? Well, so do I. We've got to support American auto makers. Even if you drove a Chevy and I drove a Ford, we support American workers, right?" "Say, you use an Allis Chalmers combine? My neighbor down the road has one and he says it's a great machine. You think when I need to get a new one I should buy an Allis Chalmers, or do you think a John Deere would be better?" Nothing like securing a vote by having a constituent help them out on a tough question!

The funniest part was that most of these politicians and candidates who had white-collar jobs and whose work clothes consisted of a three-piece suit, would turn up at the fair in blue jeans and a plaid work shirt, with the sleeves rolled up. I am sure the visual message was "I am just like you - a hard working American." Somehow, they lost the plot with high gloss polish on their shoes, creases in their jeans, and a stiff new shirt that hadn't been washed a few times to fade out the intense color.

It is all showmanship and performance art, and often, it did not work all that well.

Once the winners get elected and sworn in, they have to go to work. I wonder if they ever think about that part of life. Nor do I ever cease to be astounded at what some of our elected officials can come up with to look busy and convince us they are earning their keep. Part of it, I believe, is our fault because we hire them. They justify their salary and expense account by writing, co-authoring, and otherwise creating new legislation. It is too much like university professors who live under the harsh dictum of 'publish or perish.' Sometimes, the subject is not very important; sometimes it is not well-written or thoroughly reviewed by their peers; more often than not their paper or report ends up in some very obscure publication. For some of them, it does not matter: Getting their paper or book published is all that counts. Legislators of all branches do much the same thing.

The big difference is

that when a prof writes a paper, we can more or less ignore it if it is not appealing. When our elected officials write something it becomes a law, and it almost always costs us something, whether it is our cash or our freedoms.

Many of them seem to believe that this sort of work gives them a bit more 'credibility' when the next election rolls around. They can say that they were busy fighting for us when they introduced a number of bills, usually to reform something whether or not it needs reforming. The claim of trying to reform hot topic issues, such as taxes, gun control, elections, or education because it gets good publicity. Never mind that their pet project never gets assigned to a subcommittee so it can work its way up the chain. Never mind that if it does get into a committee it dies a slow death from lack of interest. The rallying cry is, "I am fighting for you, and I introduced..." It is all for the bragging rights and political theater.

Frankly, I wish they would just stop it. Instead of focusing on the big stuff, let's go straight for the small potatoes. Let's distract them from anything that might lead them into thinking they are better than the rest of us.

When Pope Francis died some 150 plus national leaders were in Rome for the funeral. Why wasn't there a careful analysis on the ratio of suit coats with one or two vent flaps, or none at all? I think we deserve an answer. Someone should stick a microphone in their faces and take this up with them. Then, perhaps someone can analyze and predict what this will say about the future of the stock market or international relations. It's about as good an explanation as anything else. It is only fair; for decades financial analysts have looked at the rise and fall of hemlines on skirts and dresses to conjure up a prediction for the Dow.

We need an investigation into their shoelaces. Do they wear loafers or dress shoes with 5 or 6 holes for the laces. And to look sharp, do they use a steam iron to press their laces. Now, this is serious stuff. Back in 1952 when Adlai Stevenson was running against Eisenhower, he was seen with one leg over the knee of the other, and a hole in the sole of his shoe on full display. It was a hot topic of discussion, proving' one way or the other about his qualities for the Oval Office.

Or, the gas problem. No, I do not mean gasoline or natural gas for heating. I am referring to the very personal gaseous gastro-intestinal system. We never hear any reports on this (and yes, that pun is intended). What are their secrets? Do they scrupulously avoid beans and beer for a certain number of days before they stand in front of an audience. Do they have to go to school to learn the best practices of confronting this issue?

Let's face it: If a candidate wants to convince us that he is just like us, then what is his or her advice on the topic?

Maybe someday, someone far less inhibited than me, will ask those challenging questions. That will be the day when we start seeing the curtain come down on all of the political theater, and we will all be the better for it.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Having faith in Trump? No way

Editor,

In the last edition of the Allegan County News, the Faces in the Crowd column asked random respondents what they thought about the Trump tariffs.

The first respondent replied that: "We have to have faith in our president that he knows what he is doing. God put him in office and God doesn't make mistakes".

I'm assuming that he is a Trump voter only because when I have heard this before it has always come from a Trump voter.

If that is the case one has to ask how, exactly, was it God that put Trump in office and how did that occur?

When the voter entered the voting booth did God pull the strings that guided his hand to the Trump lever?

And if that is true what happened to God's giving us the right to self-determination - our ability to make and correct our own mistakes? Did God suspend this in the last election?

If it was indeed God and not some nefarious other force, I'm curious as to why the respondent didn't think that perhaps "He" did this to help America and not to punish us for our sins as the Bible is replete with stories where "He" did just that.

Punish us for the harm we've done to His creation. Punish us for the harm we've done to those weaker and poorer than ourselves.

To me, the chaos, incompetence and damage done by this shambolic, corrupt meanspirited midget of a man suggests a force the polar opposite of God.

But if it was God, could this be a test?

And, if so, you already know what needs to be done.

"Making the Best of What's Left: When We're Too Old to Get the Chairs Reupholstered"
by Judith Viorst
c.2025, Simon & Schuster
$28.99 • 192 pages

By Terri Schlichenmeyer

lots of people who use their "Final Fifth" of life to serve, give, act, and enjoy. Not that anyone has to be active, because the Final Fifth of life should be what you want it to be.

"Old," says Viorst, "isn't just a state of mind... It's also a nonnegotiable reality."

That's something everyone needs to learn. Older people often lose their choice. They're ignored or they "become invisible..." but "WE'RE STILL HERE," she says, at age ninety-four. She might not understand her cell phone, but she can write. She might have to watch her friends leave this Earth, but she can still remember them with gratitude. She can still remind readers of the need to think before we act, at any age. Viorst can still love, although she's really not interested in that kind of love.

She doesn't "want some Perfect Pete or Terrific Ted. I just want my imperfect Milton to stop being dead."

If you're very lucky, you're going to get old someday. Also if you're smart, you'll use "Making the Best of What's Left" as a sort of guidebook.

In a you-have-to-laugh-or-you'll-cry kind of way, author Judith Viorst gives readers a peek at what it's like to live with your beloved for not nearly enough time, and how to survive their afterward. Readers who have lost their spouses will feel as though they've met a kindred spirit here, and that can be comforting but this book isn't all sad. Viorst tells her stories of Milton and their family, friends, fans, and acquaintances with humor and mensch-like advice but also with the kind of love that will make you understand that bad things happen and life goes on, though it sometimes stinks.

You may have loved Viorst's book as a child, but this memoir will mean more to someone who's well past grade school. If that's you, then put "Making the Best of What's Left" in your sights.

Allegan County clerk wins transparency award

Election Integrity Group Praises Response to Statewide Records Request

(Allegan, Michigan) Allegan County Clerk Bob Genetski is one of only 18 county clerks in the state to be recognized with the prestigious Sunlight Award. The award presented by Michigan Fair Election Institute was designed to recognize elections clerks for their “outstanding dedication and exemplary service in responding to citizens’ requests for information about elections with speed, accuracy & professionalism.”

In a letter addressed to Genetski, the MFEI explained that its members sent out a Freedom of Information Act request to every county clerk in the state. “Of Michigan’s 83 county clerks, you were among the 18 who responded in five or fewer business days ... for election data from the November 24 general election.” The Institute noted that of the 83 county clerks only 22% provided the information as quickly as the Allegan County Clerk did. “I am honored to receive the Sunlight Award for prioritizing taxpayers’ ability to access public records,” said Bob Genetski. According to the Clerk, “My staff and I take open government very seriously. We work very hard to make sure general requests and those made under the Freedom of Information Act are processed with respect and diligence believing that taxpayers own every aspect of government and that they deserve unhindered access to open records

Bob Genetski was first elected Allegan County Clerk & Register of Deeds in 2016. He is currently serving his third term. The Republican from Saugatuck previously served in the Michigan House of Representatives from 2009 – 2014. He was elected to the House in 2008 while he was teaching at a high school for at-risk students.

Parents of baby killed by driver ask other to turn to Christ

The parents of an 8-month-old baby girl who died in an Allegan County crash have issued a statement following an outpouring of support from their community.

Saturday, a 56-year-old Martin man was driving west on Baseline Road near Hillsdale Drive at a high rate of speed when he sideswiped an eastbound car and lost control, according to the Allegan County Sheriff's Office.

The truck crossed the centerline, left the road and hit a family standing near Baseline Lake: Matthew, Rebecca and 8-month-old Lucia Seifried, deputies said.

"On Saturday, my family and I were sitting in our yard watching the sun set," the Seifrieds wrote in a statement. "One minute our baby girl was playing in the grass, the next minute she was holding Jesus's hand."

The baby and the 56-year-old driver were taken to the hospital, but the child later died, according to the sheriff's office.

"Lucia was so full of joy, love and peace," the Seifrieds said. "Our hope and prayer is that through her death and story, so many lives will be saved and turn to Christ. We are incredibly upset but we are so grateful to the Lord for blessing us with Lucia's beautiful soul for almost 9 months."

Community members are invited by the Seifrieds to attend a visitation for Lucia, which is scheduled for May 9 at Frederick Funeral Home in Cincinnati, Ohio from 5-8 p.m.

A Mass of Christian

A memorial for Lucia Seifried is shown in this undated photo. The 8-month-old was killed after a driver lost control of their truck in Allegan County on April 26, 2025. (Matthew and Rebecca Seifried) some have already been targeted. Journalists? Some have already been targeted. Perhaps judges. Some too have already been targeted. What about the constitution itself? If such foundational aspects of our constitutional rights are violated as a whim, then as Justice Scalia stated, what separates us?

"Today, I remark on the state of the Constitution and judiciary only. I would reflect that the rule of law applies to all, and I would argue that it applies to judges especially. The judicial cannon of ethics provides that judges refrain from partisan activity, and I intend to adhere to this ethical demand for as long as I am a judge.

"But my conscience cries out, and I cannot and will not remain silent for the entirety of my elected term. Therefore, I have informed the governor that I intend to resign my office as chief judge of the 57th District Court effective August 1, 2025. In order to allow her team an opportunity to seek out and appoint the best qualified individual to replace me.

"I am grateful to this court, especially Carol, my court reporter and secretary, who for whom the support these last 18 years has been supportive of me in my office as judge in the county of Allegan. I'm also grateful to the Allegan Bar Association and my fellow judges for their professionalism and confidence. And I am also very thankful for the love and support of my husband Brent who is here today. For 21 years, he's been and continues to be my appeal of last resort. Thank you."

With those profound words, the Honorable William Baillargeon ended the session.

Bulldogs beat Paw Paw, Plainwell to clinch league title

By JASON WESSELDYK
SPORTS EDITOR

PAW PAW—A win over Paw Paw on Monday, May 5, would clinch the Wolverine Conference title for the Otsego girls soccer team. Mission accomplished.

Behind a hat trick from Peyton Dennany, the Bulldogs secured the 4-0 victory to improve to 6-0 in league play with one game remaining.

The conference championship was the first for the Bulldogs since 2019.

“Peyton had herself a night,” Otsego coach Levi Butcher said.

Reagen Engbers accounted for the fourth Otsego goal, with Peyton Johnson, Allie Proctor and Valeria Verdin each chipping in with an assist.

Otsego held a 27-0 edge in shots.

“We controlled the game from the opening whistle, and everyone was getting in on the action aside from goalkeeper Zoe Alkire, who didn’t face any shot,” Butcher said. “This has been a common theme in conference play, as Zoe has only faced two shots through six matches thus far.”

That, however, doesn’t mean Alkire hasn’t had an impact on games.

“Zoe has done an excellent job finding other ways to be involved, organizing us with her communication and improving her passing game with her feet,” Butcher said. “It is like having an 11th field player at times.”

Butcher praised the defensive play of Lexi Gross, Maddie Ragan and Addi Pfeifferman.

“You don’t do what we’ve done in conference without some stellar defending,” Butcher said. “Those girls did an excellent job shutting down Paw Paw’s counterattacking efforts on the night and have done so all season.”

Otsego put itself in position to clinch the league title against Paw Paw thanks to a 3-1 win over Plainwell on Wednesday, April 30.

Both teams entered the game with a 4-0 conference record, putting the winner clearly in the driver’s seat when it came to the chase for the title.

“Beating a rival on your home field is always a great feeling,” Butcher said. “It was made more special by the fact that it was youth soccer night, so we had a ton of people from both communities in the stands cheering on their teams. It is always nice when the atmosphere matches the magnitude of the game, and I think our players noticed the energy in the stadium and fed off it.”

With the score knotted at 1-1, Gross scored in the closing minutes of the first half to put Otsego up 2-1.

The Bulldogs added an insurance goal midway through the second half when Grace Gerst scored off an assist from Sydney Timmons.

“In the second half, after a couple adjustments, we carried play and it was off to the races for our attackers, especially in wide areas,” Butcher said. “We were breaking the Trojans down and simply wearing them out.

“One of our strengths is our ball retention, and we set out to make Plainwell chase so they didn’t have the legs left to counterattack. It worked well, and our squad showed poise and patience in a lot of big moments in that second half.”

Peyton Johnson scored in the second minute of the game off an assist from Olivia Witteveen to give Otsego an early lead. Plainwell got its goal from Alayna Eldred midway through the first half.

“Our seniors had never beaten Plainwell, so this was especially sweet for them. Butcher said. “The Trojans have had our number since 2019 when we secured our second straight conference title with a 1-0 win over them. They’re a good program with a ton of talent, and they’re always well organized.

“We simply hadn’t been able to compete in recent years, but we started to see a shift last spring. We had a lot of talent come into our team, but it was the attitude and soccer IQ that has really impressed us. Our girls genuinely like being together and playing alongside one another, and they know the game well.”

OTSEGO—In high school golf, it can be easy to overlook the fifth finisher on a team since the score is comprised of the top four finishers.

But in the case of a tie, the fifth golfer becomes extremely important.

Such was the case that this year’s edition of the M-89 Challenge at The Lynx Golf Course on Friday, May 2.

With two-time defending champion Otsego tied with Wayland at 318 at the conclusion of the 18 holes of play, this year’s winner came down to the perfor-

In the first game, Martin put together a six-run uprising in the top of the second inning to erase a 1-0 deficit. Haylen Buell pitched the big hit of the frame, launch-

Saugatuck didn’t go quietly, though, plating one run in the bottom of the second and four runs in the fourth to knot the score at 6-6.

But Martin scored an unearned run in the top of the sixth for what proved to be the difference in the game.

Buell pitched the final 3.1 innings in relief for the Clippers, striking out eight to lock down the victory.

Holden Burd had two hits—including a double—a run and two RBI for Sau-gatuck in the loss. Nolan LaLonde added a double and a run.

Game two saw Saugatuck score twice in each of the first two innings and once in the fourth to go up 5-0.

This time, it was Martin’s turn to fight back, scoring three runs in the top of the fifth inning. Anderson Keeler’s RBI single got the Clippers on the board, while Buell connected for his second homer of the day—a 2-run shot—to narrow the gap to 6-4.

The Clippers tied the score at 5-5 with a pair of runs in the top of the sixth.

Saugatuck wouldn’t be denied, though, scoring the winning run in the bottom of the sixth.

LAWTON—The Saugatuck boys track team turned in scoring performances in all four relays at the SAC Championship Meet on Monday, May 5.

That was a big factor in the Trailblazers' ability to earn a fifth-place showing of 50 points in the 18-team field.

The top eight finishers in each event score points based on a 10-8-6-5-4-3-2-1 scoring system.

The meet was also scored as a dual meet between Saugatuck and Gobles since the scheduled meet between the teams was cancelled due to bad weather earlier this season.

The Trailblazers won that to finish 8-0 in the SAC Lakeshore, securing the divisional championship in the process.

Allegan was 15 with nine points and Martin was 16th with seven points. Fennville failed to score.

The top relay effort by Saugatuck came in the 4x800, as the team of Sammy Gamboa, Marcus Silva, Tommy Bullinger and Grant Rehkopf posted a time of 8:54.16 to place third.

A MACctivity on thriving in nonprofit work

By Gari Voss

Non-profit work is not for the faint of heart. Often, the hours are long, and it takes courage and resolution to face the difficulties or risks. MACC, Allegan’s Multi-Agency Collaborative Council, has featured a variety of topics to assist in strengthening non-profits across Allegan County. The overall goal is to enhance the quality of life for Allegan County residents by promoting, strengthening, and reinforcing collaboration and coordination among organizations. Non-profits should not feel alone in their endeavors to solve challenges.

The May MACctivity will be an interactive workshop led by Dr. Cathy Anthofer-Fialon from Mediation Services to explore Thriving in Nonprofit Work: Self-Care on a Time Budget.

Participants will meet at the Allegan Area ESA Boardroom, 310 Thomas

St. in Allegan from 9am-2:30pm on Wednesday, May 14, 2025. Those in attendance will learn practical strategies to prioritize well-being, manage stress, and maintain energy while having a packed schedule. The session will provide tools to help recharge and sustain a passion for making a difference in the lives of those assisted by the non-profit. Register at https://allegan.fcsuite.com/erp/donate/create/ticket?edt_id=1495 or call (269) 673-8344 x209 for additional information. Lunch will be provided, and dietary restrictions may be made during registration. The fee will be $12.

FOR THE RECORD

PEEK AT THE PAST

From the pages of The Allegan News and The Allegan County News and Gazette:

May 8, 1950

Kyes honored by state JCC for work as mayor: Walter Kyes, Allegan's first mayor under the new city charter, was awarded a certificate of merit by the state Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The award was presented by Maurice Roberts, former Alleganite, now a resident of Alma, while living here was a leader in the fight to gain popular acceptance for the city manager form of government. The Allegan Junior Chamber received nationwide recognition for its part in the hotly contested campaign.

Also guests at the Thursday night meeting held at Ot-Well-Egan County Club included mayor Richard Wilcox and other members of the city council.

In accepting the certificate, ex-mayor Kyes reported on the program, which he outlined to the JCC two years ago. Virtually all of that program has been completed, Kyes told the Jaycees. Included were water-supply improvements, an equitable wage scale for city employees, relief for the parking situation, better police protection, street improvements and sewer service for several neglected neighborhoods.

Shop has 'barrel' full of antiques: After collecting antiques from far and near for three years, Joan Dalman opened a shop to display her treasures March 13 behind the Red Brick Inn near Plainwell.

The Inn is a perfect setting for an antique shop: A stagecoach stop in olden days, the farmhouse is one of a cluster of picturesque old buildings surrounded by ancient, gnarled burr oak trees.

Joan's antiques are housed in "The Rain Barrel," an old shed that once was a blacksmith shop on the farm, an area landmark.

To add to the atmosphere, the original blacksmith's forge still stands in the vine-covered building that Mrs. Dalman and her husband, Bill, who owns Imperial Carving in Allegan, spent two weeks cleaning and painting before the grand opening.

The Dalmans painted the interior red, carpeted part of the floor space, treated the original brick floor in another part and hung some light fixtures that aren't old, but Joan said she has been asked several times if they're for sale.

County schools take state awards: Plainwell's Starr Elementary School, Allegan County Intermediate School District, Allegan Public Schools and Saugatuck High School received "Michigan's Best: Education Excellence Awards."

The statewide competitive program, sponsored by the Michigan Association of School Boards, identifies and recognizes outstanding educational programs in Michigan's public schools. An independent panel of state-level education experts selects exceptional programs in elementary, secondary and intermediate schools which "exemplify innovativeness and improve student achievement," and the four schools from Allegan County were the top choices of the judges.

Plainwell Community Schools' "Kindergarten Literacy Centers" organized by director of curriculum Bob Van Dis and kindergarten teacher Mary Warrenner, increased the success of literacy of their students.

Van Dis said he and Warrenner attended the award ceremony at Edwardsburg Middle School Region 6, which is for the southwest Michigan area, to receive their MASB trophy for "Michigan's Best."

Driven to graduate: With social distancing making traditional high school commencement ceremonies all but impossible, schools across Allegan County are learning to get creative to mark the occasion.

Martin High School decided to make it a drive-thru affair.

On Friday, May 1, seniors were invited to park next to the football field at 8:20 p.m.—20:20 in military time, in a nod to the year—where they were honored. As many of the students perched atop their vehicles, their families parked elsewhere in the parking lot, the stadium lights were turned on for 20 minutes while their names were announced from the press box.

They were then escorted by the Martin Fire Department through town in their cars and back to the school.

Plans for how to mark the occasion are still in the works for Allegan Public Schools. On April 21, seniors were invited to pick up their cap and gown at the school's front lot—all from inside their cars. They could also pick up belongings left in their locker.

Allegan High School principal Jim Mallard said it was a great afternoon.

"It was awesome, and the staff was so excited to see them," Mallard said, noting staff and the local fire department greeted the seniors with congratulatory signs, albeit from behind masks.

They have been invited back this week to drop off their textbooks and devices they signed out for the year.

RELIGION SECTION

I was shaving on Easter Monday I heard the news on the radio of Pope Francis’ death, and it surprised me. Hadn’t we just seen him the day before, waving to the crowds who had come to the Vatican to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus? Then the next morning, he was gone. All things considered, what a nice way to pass away.

One phrase which I heard repeated many times over is “Holy Father.” It is one of the titles associated closely with the Popes, and I like it. No, I am not a Roman Catholic, so it is impossible for me to understand it completely. However, I did have a father, so I get the general drift of its meaning.

We sometimes speak of the ‘father figure.’ Usually, it is an older, intelligent, experienced man with a kind and gracious heart. For those of us of a certain age, television provides the examples in programs such as Leave it to Beaver, Father Knows Best, and Andy Griffith. Suffice it to know that Archie Bunker and George Jefferson will not make the cut.

Above all, regardless of the individual’s intellect or any other attribute, we want the personal connection from someone who touches our heart and mind on our level. Pope

Francis ticked many of the right boxes for many people. He was the great leader of a vast church, powerful and influential, yet welcomed a young child who spontaneously came up to him in the middle of an important meeting. On his last day, while touring the courtyard in front of St Peter’s, he paused to bless an infant.

This was never staged or planned. It was not a ‘photo-to-op’ to make him look good. It came straight from the heart, and people loved him because of it.

The world will always have a desperate need for father figures, and it is never based on their wealth or status. It is their heart that matters. Some seventy years later, and I remember how Dr. Howard Polley would drop down to his knees in the middle of the church foyer to shake hands on my level. No one told me he was a famous physician who helped develop Cortisone and was well known around the world. We were friends, and that is all that mattered then or now.

Or Evans, the custodian at the local historical society where I had my first job as his assistant, who taught practical lessons in self-discipline and hard work. Or, Mr. Ness who had a small cabinet making shop, and shared his knowledge of different types of wood. Or, Professor Henry who, when he realized I had a passionate interest in church history, always welcomed me into his office for tea and conversation.

All of these men, along with many others, had an openness and a heart for other people. They gave of themselves and wanted nothing in return.

Pope Francis has demonstrated how brief moments of personal interaction can significantly enhance the lives of others. If we choose, we can join their ranks.
